

Mother Nature's taking revenge

The earth long ago was a very clean space
No smoke from factories polluting the place
It's now clear the atmosphere we are harming
We're definitely a cause of global warming.

Fires, floods, cyclones, and tempests
Of greater severity and frequency to test us.
Houses destroyed, many lives lost
We're at war with nature, and she's the boss.

Global warming is going to create new deserts
Where once green crops used to flourish
There's too many already who live with hunger
The list is going to get longer and longer.

What can we do to tame Mother Nature
What sacrifices might we make to appease her
They're not that large, but there's many opposed
Those who've grown rich, at a cost to this world.

When actions harm others, taxes are needed
If not outright bans to stop those who are greedy
But political will is lacking and votes can be bought
And lies told about what our raping the earth has brought.

It's the children who'll suffer, and those who are young
Those older who've profited will likely be gone

Perhaps to hell, where it'll be even hotter
Than earth where no action means people will suffer.

So lets all protest, make lots of noise
Take actions ourselves that will help the cause
But we need to convince those charged with running the State
That they must take action, it might be too late.
